[1]The series entitled Orientalists in NSZL [2] will be continued with a lecture by Mária Ivanics.

The lecture will present the image of an ideal leader on the steppe, in societies that had not developed into an empire but remained on the level of tribal alliance, via the analysis of a late 17th century source in Eastern Turkish, originating from the area of the Volga. Mária Ivanics will discuss the nomadic ruler's legitimation, taking into account his insignias (special characteristics) one by one. She will also describe the leader's personality traits, going into detail as regards what kind of external and internal qualities had been expected from them, what tasks had been assigned to the ruler, and how a clan society had to be organized. The lecture will also discuss

[3]the special clan characteristics of the clans mentioned in the source.
